

Update: Domestic Violence Benchbook (3rd ed)

CHAPTER 8

Enforcing Personal Protection Orders

8.5 Initiating Criminal Contempt Proceedings by Warrantless Arrest

Insert the following “Note” after the first paragraph on page 328:

Note: A petitioner who obtains a PPO does not have a constitutionally protected right to have it enforced even when officers have probable cause to believe that a violation has occurred. Town of Castle Rock v Gonzales, 545 US ___, ___ (2005).

Statutory Firearms Restrictions in Domestic Violence Cases

9.5 Restrictions Arising from Conviction of a Felony

B. Michigan Restrictions on the Purchase or Possession of Firearms by Convicted Felons

Add the following text to the July 2004 update to this subsection:

The Michigan Supreme Court affirmed the Court of Appeals' holding. People v Perkins, ___ Mich ___, ___ (2005).
